

WHAT IS MARKETING?

Marketing is one of the most dynamic and creative careers in business. There are many types of marketing careers, including sales and sales management, advertising, public relations, purchasing, and promotions development. If you're creative, highly motivated, and persuasive, marketing may be the right business career for you.

What Do Marketing Professionals Do?

Marketing includes many different occupations. Field salespeople call on consumer or corporate clients to sell a variety of different products and services. Sales managers can manage a large number of salespeople and must be motivating leaders. Account executives at an advertising agency serve as a liaison between corporate clients and the agency's creative team to develop advertising campaigns. Public relations professionals use strong oral and written communication skills to relay important information about an organization to the public. And purchasing managers procure important materials for their company to manufacture products. Whatever field you pursue in marketing, you must have the technical training to succeed.

Your career in Marketing starts here!

Whether you're just starting your career or you're looking to add skills to your resume, marketing is one of the most creative and people-oriented careers in business.

The Certificate of Completion (CCL) in Marketing and the Associates Degree (AAS) in Marketing and Sales are designed to provide you with the skills and knowledge needed for an entry-level position in marketing, advertising, or promotion.
